

Dr. Ilias Smyrnioudis is the General Manager and Head of Research & Development Unit of the Chios Mastiha Growers Association, since 2007 & Scientific Director at the Mastic Research Center since 2021. He is a graduate of the Faculty of Agriculture of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, holds a master's degree in disease management from the University of Newcastle upon Tyne, UK (with a Scholarship from the "Pateras" Foundation) and a PhD in Virology, funded by the European Community (Marie Curie), from Rothamsted Research Center (BBSRC) in collaboration with the Phytopathology Laboratory of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. During his studies, he has been awarded by the Aristotle University and the State Scholarship Foundation four times as an excellence scholarship. He has coordinated, on behalf of the Chios Mastiha Growers Association, ten research programs. He was a member of the Scientific Council for Research and Innovation of the Northern Aegean. He is a Member of the Board of Directors at Mediterra S.A./Mastihashop, at the Mastiha Research Center as well as CEO at Mastiha Damla Izmir. He has authored/participated in twenty-five scientific articles in SCI journals and eighteen publications in International and National Conferences.